MONDAY, August 2, 1773.

Messieurs PRINTERS,

Please to publish the following.

BRITONS attend.—AMERICANS give Ear.

THE People of this Continent are awaked by the Call of Liberty, and are now forming Plans to preserve it in Perfection to future Ages.—The People of Britain are alarmed, and enquire by what Means they shall secure the Dependance of America.——

It is demonstratively certain, that no Power nor Wisdom in Great-Britain, can secure the Dependence of the Colonies agreeable to her Idea of Dependence.——Therefore the Enquiry ought to be, How shall Union and Affection be preserved between Britain and America, upon Principles of universal Liberty, and thereby a Foundation be laid for the Duration and Glory of the whole Empire? For this Purpose the People in Britain should turn their Attention to this great and important Question. And as it is the Duty of the Colonies to consult the Interest of Great-Britain, as well as their own, it appears to be highly necessary, and very important at this juncture, that there should be a Meeting of American States, composed of Members chosen by the several Houses of Representatives in the Colonies, to consider what Measures will most effectually preserve the Liberties, and promote the Prosperity of America——and also consult how the Union with Britain may be perpetuated to the latest Ages.——

Many and great are the Advantages that may result from such a Congress or Meeting of American States, and should be forwarded as fast as possible.——If the People in Great-Britain are benefully disposed to compromise past Differences with America, and to establish a Union upon just and liberal Principles, the Americans will listen to every Appearance of Reason, and by continued Exertions of Reason in both Countries, and Researches into human Policy, their united Wisdom may discover and adopt a Plan of Union, founded on such Principles as will stand the Test of Time, be productive of all those Blessings which flow from the best constituted Civil Society, and raise ENGLISHMEN above every human Name.

The Prospect which Union between Britain and America, founded on equal Liberty, would give the Nation, is truly glorious, and big with public Happiness; while that contracted narrow-soul'd Policy, which dictated the late Measures towards America, is pregnant with every Evil, and with hasty Steps precipitates Britain to final Ruin.

Let every Man of Sentiment and Patriotism in Britain and America, rouse up his Genius, and exert his Powers to restore and perpetuate that HARMONY between the two Countries which is the grand Pillar that supports the Empire, and without which it cannot stand.——Should this just, liberal and righteous Policy prevail, which is so warmly recommended in America, and built upon the eternal Laws of Reason and Nature, what human Imagination can form an Idea of the Dominion and Glory to which our Nation might arrive!——As the rising Sun hides the Stars, so would the British Empire eclipse all other Nations under Heaven.

PROPOSALS

For printing, by SUBSCRIPTION,

A NEW Periodical Publication, entitled,

THE ROYAL

American MAGAZINE,

Or, UNIVERSAL REPOSITORY.

[To be published monthly.]

To the PUBLIC.

LITERATURE being the grand fountain from whence springs all that is requisite to accomplish rational beings, for the enjoyment of social happiness, and fit them for their various employments on this stage of action; it is noble in us to encourage and cultivate every thing tending to promote this great gift of heaven among mankind.

Before the art of printing was known, the sons of science suffered greatly; and it is beyond a doubt that for the want of that useful vehicle the PRINTING PRESS, in those days, many very valuable essays of the ancients have been buried in oblivion.

In this polite age when printing flourishes, the man of genius may hand his performances to the public, who may give them to their children, and so transmit them down to posterity.

We may now, from the King upon the throne to the peasant in his cottage, learn what is passing in the world, and developing the arcana of both civil and ecclesiastical tyranny of all their mystery, inform ourselves of every thing conducive to our happiness in this or the coming world.

For the better and more regular communication of intelligence, and that the productions of men of genius might be more universally known, periodical publications first took place; and their periods were long or short, as best served the community where they were established. Among the many performances of this kind, which are so frequent in Europe, none is more wanted in America, and particularly in this part of it, than a MONTHLY one; which want has long been complained of by men of the greatest ingenuity in the American world. Those gentlemen would undoubtedly much oftner favour the public with essays, instructive and entertaining to all classes of men, if there was a suitable periodical publication for their insertion. News papers are known to be of general utility but not so fit to convey to posterity the labours of the learned, as they are, most commonly, only noticed for a day; and then thrown neglected by; whereas monthly publications are preserved in the libraries of men of the greatest abilities in the literary world. It is needless to point out any thing further in recommendation of this intended work. The publisher of these proposals, therefore begs leave with the utmost submission, to present the following

PLAN of the ROYAL

AMERICAN MAGAZINE.

Several gentlemen of known abilities, have kindly promised to favour the public through THIS channel, with essays on various subjects for instruction and amusement. Their productions will no doubt fill a considerable part of this work; And as the publisher has engaged all the British Magazines, Reviews, &c. and all the periodical publications in America, from these will be selected whatever is new, curious and entertaining; As the debates in the British House of Commons are so interesting to the whole British empire, whatever debate may be important to Europe or concern America, will be duly noticed, so that the essence of the British periodical publications may be here seen at one view.

While we are selecting from the labours of our European brethren, we shall not fall of making the strictest searches after curious anecdotes, and interesting events in British America, in order to compleat this part of the plan; and the publisher now requests the assistance of the learned, the witty, the curious and the candid of both sexes throughout this extensive continent, and hopes they will favour him with their correspondence for the public benefit.

Every event both foreign and domestic, that may deserve the public notice, will be duly registered, as well as Poetical Essays, Marriages, Deaths, &c. and whatever is noticed in publications of this kind.

To make this American performance at least as valuable as any of the British Magazines, one elegant COPPER PLATE Print, at least, will be given Monthly, and an Index and Title Page at the end of the year.

And to compleat this PLAN,

Will be added,

[To begin at the end of the first number and continued until the whole is finished, printed in an elegant manner on fine paper, and occasionally ornamented with copper plate prints exclusive of those particularly for the Magazine, given gratis.]

Governor HUTCHINSON'S History

Of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY,

Which when finished will be worth the cost of the Magazines.

 This history will be printed in such a manner as to be bound up by itself, and on a larger type than the Magazine.

The publisher determines to adhere closely to his plan, which he doubts not will be so acceptable to the public, as that they will enable him, by a quick subscription to put it speedily in execution, which he assures them he will immediately do when a sufficient number of subscribers appear, barely to defray the expence of setting it on foot.

The public may be assured, that the Royal American Magazine, is not by any means to be a party affair, or any ways tend to defame or lessen private characters, therefore begs no one would conceive an unfavourable opinion of it, as his design is to render it acceptable to ALL honest men; of whatever religious or political principles they may be.

I. THOMAS.

CONDITIONS.

I. Each number of the Royal American Magazine to consist of fifty pages, large octavo, printed on a fine demy paper, with a new and elegant type (now making in England for that purpose.)

II. The publication will always be on or before the last day of the month.

III. The price, Ten Shillings and Four Pence lawful money or Seven Shillings and Nine Pence sterling, per annum, which is about Six Shillings old tenor per number.

IV. Four Shillings lawful money, or Three Shillings, sterling, to be paid on delivery of the first number (in order to enable the publisher to prosecute his plan, which will be attended with a very great expence) the remainder at the expiration of the year after the publication.

V. Those subscribers, who live in Boston, may depend on having their Magazines, sent to their houses on the days of publication, and customers in the country, and those in other provinces, may rely on having theirs forwarded to them by the first opportunity.

AMONG the many letters, narratives, memorials, affidavits, &c. that have been sent from hence to London, by Bernard, Oliver, the Commissioners of the Customs, Harrison, Hallowell, Moffatt, Rome, and the whole Cabal of Ministerial Hirelings, there are none that appear to be more incendiary, or better calculated to inflame the Nation and the Colonies with Resentment against each other, than those sign'd THO. HUTCHINSON.

After having in a series of letters represented to the Ministry, thro' the medium of his private confidential friend, that most active member of Parliament, WHATELY, that nothing but anarchy reign'd in his native town and province; that his Maj.ty's Council, the Grand Juries, and "all the internal authority of the province" were under the direction and influence of the leaders of the Boston town-meetings; artfully insinuating the necessity of the nation's retaining the treatment the crown-officers had met with, when "being destitute of protection," "they thought themselves oblig'd to quit the place of their residence, and go on board a King's ship for safety," while "all the internal authority of the Province took no notice of it," although there had been six justices of the peace appointed by the Council to enquire into the disorders that had happened; representing "the continual danger of insurrections", and of "some of the few friends" of government "being knock'd in the head"; including, to serve his purpose, a private letter from one of his confidants, who informed his honor that another had informed him that he verily believed his honor's life was greatly in danger from those cataliles against his honor, the Sons of Liberty; affirming that "the distemper was growing," and that "in this state of things," that is, without the aid of military power, "there was no security to him but quitting his post, which nothing but the last extremity would justify"; that because he had at chief justice, enlarg'd in his charge to the grand jury, but to no purpose, upon what he called an infamous libel", "the people had been more enrag'd against him than ever"; committing his charge at the request of Bernard to writing, and inclosing it with the professed design to give Mr. Whately "an idea of our judicatories", but rather with a real intention to give him an opportunity of laying before the ministry, a Specimen of his zeal in support of their measures; and to convince them of the truth of what Bernard had written, that "there would be no want" in Mr. Hutchinson "of a due enforcement of the laws", (the riotous law) provided he should be protected and supported in his posts by the military power; or provided "the hands of government in the Massachusetts-Bay should be strengthened," as Lord Hillsborough expresses it in "his secret and confidential" letter to General Gage, "by one regiment, or such forces as the General should think necessary, to be quartered in Boston, to give every legal assistance—to the officers of the revenue."

After these most exaggerated accounts of the turbulence and audacity of the factious people, "countenanced and encouraged by men in public posts," and "so increas'd in their numbers as to submit to government no farther than they tho't proper"; he adds, "Whilst we were in this state," the "news came of two regiments being ordered from Halifax, and soon after two more from Ireland"! joyful news! Whately, to whom I wrote as to a "private friend and confident", knew well my intention, and how to make the best use of my letters. Hallowell, to whom I refer'd him for a more full and explicit account, than I chose then to give under my hand, even to a confidential friend, left the party here, by their agent or their emissaries in London" should detect me, has also his merit. Our joint efforts have at length prevailed on administration to conclude that all is anarchy here; and that "this anarchy must not last always". May Heaven send a prosperous gale to the fleet! Nothing yet remains to compleat my wishes and designs but the arrival of the troops; and all the while my faithful Whately, has according to my desire, "kept every thing I have written" upon the subject "a secret".

Could it possibly have been imagined, that he who was bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh—who had boasted, as though his ancestors had been of the first rank and figure in his country—who had all the honor lavishly heaped upon him, which his fellow-citizens had it in their power to bestow—who had profess'd the strongest attachment to his native country, and the most tender feelings for its happiness—could it have been even imagined, that such a man, could be so lost to all sense of gratitude and publick love, as thus to aid the designs of despotick power, for the sake of rising a single step higher!

Messieurs EDES & GILL,

Please to insert the following in your next Paper.

Boston, July 30, 1773. Y'rs.

THE Deposition of Mr. John Mills was not intended for "the notice" of Mr. Sheriff Greenleaf, more than for the notice of any other Gentleman; and though he is pleased to think the design of it was to injure his Character, there is nothing in it or in "the anonymous preface" to it, from whence such an Inference can be justly made; and he is obliged to misquote the preface to force such a Construction from it.

The writer of the preface most certainly had no such design; and he has been very unhappy in his mode of expression, if it will justify a supposition that he had.

His design was to correct a misrepresentation, that had been made with regard to the Barrel on the Beacon, and which was intended to cast a slur on his Majesty's Council for what they had said concerning it.—In pursuance of the same design the following Deposition is laid before the public in Corroboration of Mr. Mills's, and other Depositions can be had to the same Effect. From all which it will appear, that what the Council had said was well grounded; and also that the Sheriff is mistaken in supposing "the opinion of every person present" was the same with his own: And with respect to his own, it is very manifest from it, that the Barrel could poorly answer the purpose of a Signal, for which, by setting it on Fire, it has lately (for the purpose abovementioned) been confidently affirmed to be well calculated and intended.—It is needless to say any thing further on this Head, only that Mr. Mills declares, his Opinion was never at any time different from what it appears to be in his Deposition, notwithstanding the suggestion to the contrary.

As nothing disrespectful to Mr. Sheriff Greenleaf was intended by the former "preface," so it is hoped that in this preface, the preface is not justly chargeable with such an intention.

Having had occasion above to refer to the late Proceedings of the Council, it brings to my remembrance the Performance of "Philalethes," in which he may think he has, with becoming decency and integrity, made his Remarks on those Proceedings. I have only one Observation to make on it, which is, that his wit where he aims to be witty, and his reasoning where he has a shew of it, are intirely founded on a misrepresentation or misquotation of the Paragraphs, upon which he has bestowed the honour of his Remarks: as those, that have read both, with the least degree of attention, must have observed. The Proceedings themselves contain a full and satisfactory answer to the Remarks: And the Person, if any such there be, that think the Remarks of any weight, are referred to the News Papers containing the Council-Proceedings, for such an answer.

I Andrew Campbell, of Boston, Trader, do testify and declare, that at the time Mr. John Mills was employed by the Sheriff to take down a Barrel, that had been placed on the Beacon in Boston, my business call'd me to a part of the Town, which made it needful for me to cross Beacon Hill, on which I was present when the said Barrel was taken down, and when down, my curiosity led me to take hold of it and examine it, and I well remember that it was a dry empty Barrel, and appeared to me to have been a Nail-Cask. And I further declare, that the said Barrel had neither Tar, Pitch, nor Turpentine sticking to it, and I plainly saw through the Joints of it before it was taken down.

ANDREW CAMPBELL.

SUFFOLK, ss. The abovenamed Andrew Campbell, July 30, 1773. Campbell personally appearing, maketh Oath to the Truth of the foregoing Deposition by him Subscribed, before me,

EDMUND QUINCY, J. Pacis.

Friday last Captain Crowell Hatch arrived here in seven Weeks from London; by whom we have Papers to the 5th of June, from which we have extracted the following, viz.

From the PUBLIC ADVERTISER.

To the Right Reverend JONATHAN, Lord Bishop of St. ASAPH. vid pa. 267

GIVE me Leave, my Lord, to offer you, in behalf of a much injured People, my most sincere Thanks for the Wisdom, the Justice, the Magnanimity of Sentiment respecting America, which appear in your Sermon preached lately before the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. Had one Ray of that political Wisdom and Virtue, which shine through it, directed the Counsels of those who commenced or conducted the late Innovations in America, we had not now been a divided, and I must add, a desperate People.

You regard the Americans as Fellow Subjects and Fellow Christians. You can contemplate with a noble Pleasure, felt only by enlarged Minds, the Prospect of a growing Empire in America; where, when England shall feel that Fate to which Providence has doomed all mortal Things, the British Constitution, her Religion, her Laws, her Liberties, her Arts, her Arms may revive with new Lustre, Dignity and Power. It is this glorious Prospect which inspires you to say "perhaps the Annals of History have never afforded a more grateful Spectacle to a benevolent and philosophic Mind, than the Growth and Progress of the British Colonies in North-America."

It is this Spectacle, however, that has prompted the Rapacity of some and the Jealousy of others. Upon these pernicious Principles the late System of American Administration was founded; and they whose Wish it is to trample upon the Liberties of the whole Empire, have availed themselves of these Means, to make this Country instrumental in the Subjection of that. Had they succeeded America would in her Turn have been the Instrument of imposing Chains on this People. Every one then, who values his Liberty, has Reason to join my Lord Chatham in rejoicing at that Resistance on the Part of America, which eventually saved the Liberties of England.

Our Ancestors, while they maintained a supreme Power over the Colonies, for the Purposes of Commerce, left them internally the free Enjoyment of their Rights and Liberties, constitutionally secured. It was the Violation of these Rights first disturbed that Union and Cordiality between us, which you justly say "for the common Utility ought never to have been interrupted." It is an Union worth every wise and good Man's Endeavour to restore. But I may venture to affirm that nothing but a generous Return to the System of our Fathers can ever effect this salutary Purpose. This is all the Americans require; and surely such a Request did not deserve the Treatment it has received. The Terms on which you propose healing this unhappy Division, are too wise, fair and benevolent to fail of Success. But I am very sorry to say that there is very little Hope of any conciliatory Plan being adopted. We often see Men in their sober Senses pursue Measures which, in Contemplation, we should imagine nothing less than Madness could inspire. Some such Fatality hangs over the American Department, and urges us to Extremities. They persevere in a System from which they expect no Good, and which threatens infinite Ill. As if Rashness were Magnanimity, and Obstinacy, Wisdom. The late Measure of dragging Americans across the Ocean to take their Trials here on Suspicion of a Crime, is so replete with Horror, Injustice and Oppression, so unexampled, so dangerous, so reproachful, that it threatens more than any thing that has yet happened, to increase and alienate the Minds of that People, beyond a Possibility of Reconciliation. We know they have Feelings, and quick ones too. What then must be their Reflections, when they see themselves exposed to a Mode of Trial, in which Innocence is Ruin.

From whatever Cause this Violence proceeds, the Consequence will, I am sure, be lamented. The Artifices of factious and interested Men, who, as your Lordship observes, "with to grow eminent by the Misfortunes of their Country," are certainly not unexerted to precipitate Matters to the most desperate Issue. Sir Francis Bernard, Governor Hutchinson and others of the same Complexion, see their own Safety involved in the Calamities of their Country. It is the Hour of deliberate Enquiry and determined Justice, which they tremble to meet; the true Interests of England, the Peace and Happiness of America, the Dictates of Policy, Justice, and Humanity, have hitherto, contended against their Artifices in vain.

It is impossible not to feel the Wisdom and Benevolence of your Lordship's Sentiments, regarding all the unhappy Appendages of this mighty Empire. True Humanity, like the Providence of God, in its Views is universal. Wherever Misery exists, Compassion is due. Whether the unhappy Objects be Americans, Africans or Indians, they were born of Woman, & are our Brothers.

We have seen the Colonies flourish by the Indulgence of the Mother Country, and I hope we shall see them surmount even her Rigour. This Hope is founded on a long and full Consideration of the Subject. They were rising like Laurels about her Table, like Towers about her strong Hold; her Ornament in Peace, her Arrows in War. Their Confidence, their Love, their Veneration, were like Hooks of Steel, that grappled them to this Island. 'Tis not so now. But they may yet be her Resource in Misfortune, her Asylum in Misery. If ever the Iron Hand of Oppression should afflict us, we shall find how much a peopled and polished Country is preferable to the Savage Shores, on which our Ancestors were obliged to take Refuge from the Pressure of the same Calamity.

Your Lordship will forgive me for thus addressing you in a public Paper. It is the only Way I have of avowing my Gratitude, not for your Partiality to the Cause I support, but for those wise, benevolent, and generous Sentiments, which do Honor to human Nature. Sentiments, which in your Lordship only might render that Right Reverend Bench respectable, from which, to speak with Moderation, the Americans have hitherto met with no Mercy.

A Letter from London by the last Ship says, That the Petition of the House of Representatives of this Province for redress of the intollerable Grievances, occasioned by the Governor and the Judges of the Superior Court being made dependent on the Crown for Support, have been presented to the KING, but that the fate of them was dubious; his Majesty having been informed that it did not express the Sense of the good People of the Province, and that it was carried in the House by the Artifice of a few of its Members. We hear from Marblehead, that two Persons lately had the Small-Pox in that Town, and recovered, before it was suspected that they had that Disease, attributing their Eruptions and Sickness to some Kind of Poison, which they had inadvertently taken. Those Persons were occasionally visited, during the Course of their Disorder, by a Number of Persons who were liable to catch the Small Pox. Several of these Persons breaking out with it, the latter End of last Week, was the first Discovery the Inhabitants made of the Danger they were exposed to, which occasioned great Consternation in the Town, as, at a moderate Computation, it contains not less than five or six thousand Persons subject to receive that Disease. We have the Pleasure, however, to hear, that, by the careful, and vigilant Conduct of the Select-men, under God, there is at present no great Danger of its spreading.

KEYSER's PILLS.

THE many cures daily effected by this medicine, in every appearance of the secret distemper, from the slightest symptom, to the most desperate forlorn state, has induced persons tormented with other diseases to make tryals of it, which last week produced the underwritten certificate, from one well known in New-York, and now in perfect health. He was a long time the veriest of cripples by the RHEUMATISM. He took a great many of the pills, which made his cure expensive, but the health, strength and agility he now enjoys is an ample compensation for the purchase money.

Copy of W. Shipman's certificate.

Mr. RIVINGTON,

As the happy Effects of Dr. Keyser's medicine in rheumatic cases, may not be so well known as in some particular disorder, the following account of their virtue in that troublesome complaint, you are welcome to make public.

Having been for some years so violently afflicted with the rheumatism, as, at times, to be entirely deprived of the use of my limbs, confined to my bed, unable to turn or help myself in the least, rendered incapable of doing any business, and my health reduced to the lowest ebb, I tried several remedies, but without success: I at last determined to make a tryal of Dr. Keyser's pills, and agreeable to your printed directions I began taking them the beginning of September last; after taking them about two weeks I found a surprizing relief from the pain and obstructions in my right knee, where the disorder was chiefly fixed; this agreeable change encouraged me to continue taking them, which I have done to this day, without any other consequence but that happy one of being restored to perfect health and ease.

In justice to this excellent medicine, I must likewise mention another benefit I received from it.—I about two months ago perceived a small hard lump in my right arm, which was very sore and painful, and seemed to increase, I applied to a doctor to disperse it, but he informed me it was an encreased humour, or a swell inclosed in a vesticle or a bag, and covered not to be dispersed any other way than by cutting it out; unwilling to undergo this operation, I continued the use of my best of friends, Dr. Keyser's pills, and they happily likewise removed this very painful and alarming excrescence.

This is a faithful relation of my case, and I can with an honest confidence, recommend the medicine to those who are afflicted with any rheumatic complaints.

They are sold by Dr. Golthwaite, in boxes of 5 dollars, 2 and ½ dollars, 1½ dollars and ¼ dollar each.
